

If a little Bertram can survive five years of charter out of Mombasa, think what a big one can do.

One look at the nautical graveyard along Mombasa's Old Fort channel and you get the idea fast. It's no place for pussycats.

The Bertram 31 seen striking through it is the queen of the sportfishing fleet that plies the game laden currents off Kenya. Through 4,000 hours of charter, she's been seaslammed a million times, but still beats everything else out to the big fish. Like a score of Bertrams from Mozambique up. And 1400 more 31's throughout the world.

Out in the boondocks where there aren't too many handy patch-it-up ports to run in to, you'll find a lot more Bertrams than anything else you can name. The boys out there know which boxes hold together and which ones fall apart.

The little Bertram 31 that started the whole deep-V thing has a very big sister. The 46 convertible. Luxurious enough to be in demand as a cruising yacht. Swift and agile enough to set records in a growing list of bilfish forays.

She sleeps six, has two private heads with showers, a unique galley plan that keeps everything up in the sun but out of the way, and cockpit and bridge space to hold a dozen guests at cocktail time.

Bertram also builds great cruising yachts. Up to 58' L.O.A. With the same sturdiness and seaworthiness as our myriad sportfishermen and convertibles.

So, whatever you want out of boating, your first step toward the closest thing to perfection is in the direction of a Bertram dealer. For the name and address of the nearest one, and a color brochure of the full line, write Bertram Yacht, 3653 N.W. 21st Street, Miami, Florida 33142.
